

Directions for your Constructive Response to In Cold Blood

- After you have read each of the constructed response questions below, select one to answer. The constructed response verbiage is listed below to assist you in this process.
- Responses are graded on quality not quantity, looking for thinking in your writing, and reflection on the article above.
- Use the film In Cold Blood to explore the characters and storyline in order to provide support for your answers and to properly address the questions.
- You may compose your response in a Microsoft Word document.
- Make sure to include your name and hour attached to your work.
- Email your assignment as an attachment or within the email your instructor. Subject line: In Cold Blood Assignment

Option One

Insider/Outsider Stance of Central Characters: Examine the Clutter's status as insiders against Perry and Dick's status as misfits and outlaws. In their fantasies Perry and Dick both dream of becoming insiders by imagining themselves in stereotypical terms of American masculine identities. What are the specific attributes they imagine will give them not only insider status but celebrity status? Adolescents sometimes have dreams similar to Dick's and Perry's. Does the novel suggest why some people out-grow of these dreams and others do not? Does the novel suggest why some people act out while others, who might secretly have the same dreams, do not?

Option Two

Solitary Contemplation: Locate passages that depict Perry Smith's fantasy life. He seems almost unable to tell the difference between his inner life and reality. Compare and contrast Smith's fantasies with those of other characters from other works, such as Gatsby, for example. Dick Hickock seems to have less of an inner life, but what are his fantasies? Alvin Dewey, the investigator, also has passages that depict his thoughts. Contrast his reflections to Perry's and Dick's.

Option Three

The American Dream: Much of literature today suggests that the American Dream is being threatened by lawlessness. Some version of the American Dream seems to provoke Perry and Smith to commit their crime; and Herb Clutter, who is its embodiment, suddenly loses everything—his well-ordered life and those of his family are senselessly destroyed in one night. Do you think our literature's fascination with the outlaw and society's anxiety over becoming victims is an accurate reflection of our lives today? Does, or does not, thoughtful literature (opposed to thrillers) offer anything to help us better understand the times in which we live and better cope with our anxieties?

Option Four

American History: Holcomb, Kansas appeared to Capote as the very embodiment of traditional American ideas—hard work and endurance, living close to the land, strong religious traditions, a sense of community; and the Clutters seemed an exemplary family, wherein, the father was a strong provider and authority figure who was raising his children to become successful, contributing adults. The crime, however, suggests that history has the potential of becoming a nightmare against which the individual has little control, and that the state can exercise control only after the fact. In addition to crime, what are some of the other themes in literature today that suggest that history can, of perhaps already has, become nightmare?

Key Verbs and Tasks used in Constructive Response

- Analyze - Examining carefully by looking at the different parts of the whole and figuring out how they are related to each other.
- Apply - Using what you have learned to demonstrate show, or relate something.
- Compare - Using examples to show how things are similar.
- Contrast - Using examples to show how things are different.
- Evaluate - Making a judgment backed up with support.
- Infer - Making an educated guess or hypothesizing... reading between the lines.
- Interpret - Explaining a possible meaning of a text
- Paraphrase - Putting the author's ideas into your own words
- Predict - Using information available to make an educated guess about future events
- Summarize - Presenting the author's main ideas in a shortened form
- Support - Using specific facts to "back up" your answer, utilize details and examples from the text.
- Synthesize - Combining several ideas and making something new